Name:

What is a County?

You already know that the United States is divided into smaller units of government called states. But what are states divided into? Counties! A county is the next smallest unit of government below a state. Counties make it easier to provide services directly to people. The county seat is the town or city in each county that serves as the home for the county government.

Counties Provide Services to You

You've probably benefited from county services without even realizing it. Have you ever driven on a road? Needed a copy of your birth certificate? Called 911? Although every county is different, maintaining roads, keeping vital records, and providing emergency services are the kinds of services that counties might provide. But that's not all. Here is a list of more services that counties might provide for their residents:

- Run elections
- Operate courts and jails
- Run hospitals
- Offer mental health services
- Provide clean water

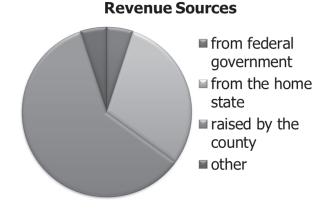

- Keep property records
- Plan how land will be developed
- Give relief to the poor
- Run disease prevention programs
- Maintain parks

Counties in the state of Illinois

Paying for County Services

It takes money to provide all these services. Counties have three main sources of money to pay for it all: the federal government, the state, and the county itself. The smallest share of a county's money comes from the federal government. A bigger share—usually almost onethird of a county's money—comes from the state.

But the biggest source of money for a county is the county itself. Most of this money comes from property taxes people or businesses pay on land and buildings they own inside the county. Some counties also have a sales tax on items sold inside the county. Finally, counties raise money by charging fees for services the county provides. For example, a county may provide garbage collection, but people who participate have to pay for that service.

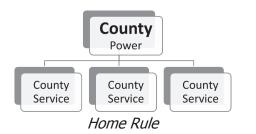

Sometimes the federal or state government make counties provide certain services but don't give counties any money to pay for those services. These demands are called unfunded mandates because they are mandated (ordered) but not funded (paid for). For example, counties are responsible for running elections, but they do not receive any money to pay for the elections. Counties must provide these services even if it means raising more money on their own.

County Power

Counties don't have magic powers. Instead, they get their power from one of two places. In some states, the state itself gives counties the power to carry out duties and provide services. Those states follow Dillon's Rule, which says that a county must get authority from the state legislature before it can provide services. These states see the county government as just another part of the state.

In other states, counties are considered to have natural powers of their own. Maybe this is a little like magic, but it's actually called Home Rule. Under Home Rule, counties have the power to make decisions for themselves about what services to provide. In these states, counties have some independence from the state. But don't get the wrong idea—even in these states, state laws always trump county laws.

County

Service

Who's In Charge Around Here?

There are three ways a county's government might be organized:

Commission Only County citizens elect several people to sit on a commission (also called a board). This board has some "legislative" power because it passes county laws (which are called ordinances) and figures out the county's budget. It has some "executive" power because it decides what the county's policies will be and carries out the laws it passes. Commissions also share some of their power with elected officials who oversee specific departments, such as the sheriff, clerk, or county judge.

State

Power

Countv

Service

Dillon's Rule

County

Service

Commission/Administrator/Manager Under this system, the commission gives some of its "executive" power to an administrator. The commission chooses the administrator and has the power to fire that person. The administrator carries out the board's decisions.

Commission + Executive Under this system, an elected person separate from the commission has the county's "executive" power. This executive can sometimes veto decisions the board makes. This is more like a real legislative and executive branch, because the commission and the executive can check each other's power.

iCivics

Counties Go Way Back

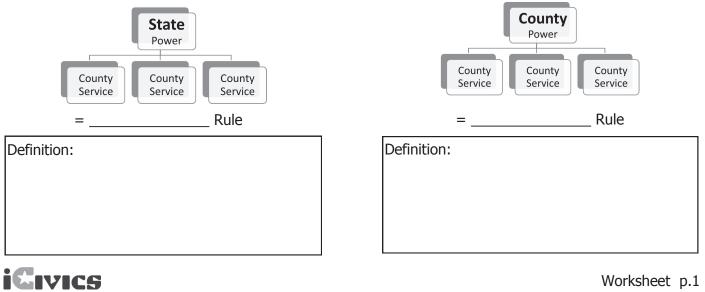

Well before the Unites States was formed, England was divided into units called "shires." English shires served the local community and represented the national government. The thirteen English colonies in America borrowed the shire system and adapted it to their needs. When the United States government was formed, the writers of the Constitution did not say how local government should be run. As a result, county governments continued and developed into the county system we have today. Vermont's county seats are still called shire towns!

Name:

True or False? Circle true () or false () for each statement. If the statement is false, cross out the part that is wrong and correct it on the line below.

1. Counties in the United States come from an ancient American Indian tradition.	or 🐢
2. Rules for counties and local governments are spelled out in the U.S. Constitution	n. 📫 or 🟴
3. Counties have adapted to meet the needs of the communities they serve.	or 🕶
4. Counties all across the United States are managed the same way.	or 😷
5. Most of counties' money comes from the federal government.	or 🐢
6. The first counties were units of government created as "districts."	or 👎
7. The main in-county source of income for most counties is the sales tax.	or 🕶
8. A county executive can be fired by the county commission.	or 🚛
9. Unfunded mandates are services the federal government demands and pays for.	or 👎
10. A county commission can act as both a legislative and executive branch.	or 🐢

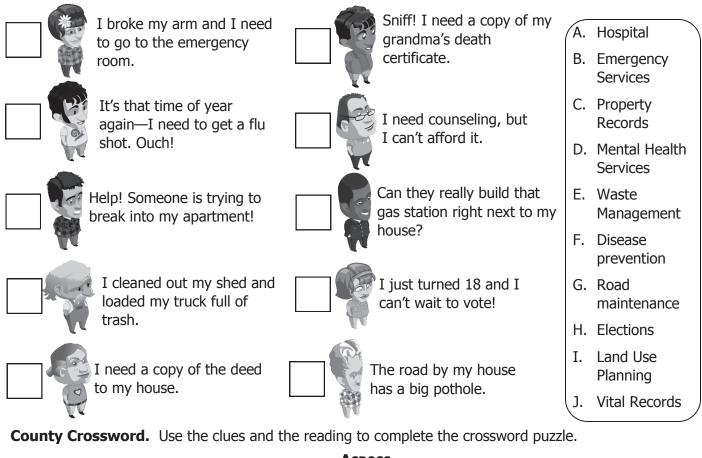

County Power. Label and define Home Rule and Dillon's Rule.

Worksheet p.1

Name:

County to the Rescue! Help each person below find the county service they need.

- 3. The next smallest unit of government below a state.
- 7. A group of people in charge of a county
- 8. Money a person pays for a county service
- 9. Counties provide services directly to _____.
- 10. A word that means "not paid for."

Down

6

9

- 2. Carries out board decisions in some counties.
- 4. When a commission decides the county's policies, it is like this branch of government.
- 5. When a commission passes county laws, it is partly like this branch of government.
- 6. Something a county has been ordered to do.

10

1

3

2

8

4

5

Th	e Capable County	Name:
	My County (Fact S	STAN STAN
	County Name: State:
The Basics	Draw your state, and put a star where your county is located.	Draw your county seal.
	How many people live in your county?	The population in my county is growing or shrinking
oids	What is the largest city in your county?	My county is more rural or urban or mixed
Factoids	How large is your county (in square miles)?	My county has industry agriculture business major university major tourist site other:
lent	My county has a County Commission/Board County Administrator	Pick three agencies or department and briefly describe the kind of work they do. 1– Thedepartment focuses on
County Government	County Executive Where are the county offices located?	 2– Thedepartment focuses on
County	How many departments or agencies are in your county government?	 3– Thedepartment focuses on Every county should have proper promotional materials. Create a brochure about your county! Start by folding your paper on the lines, then include all the pieces of information listed below... Make sure your brochure is neat and eye-catching!

Page One The front page of your county brochure should be the title page. It should include the following things:

- ♦Name of County
- ♦County Seat

♦State

County Motto (optional)

♦Seal

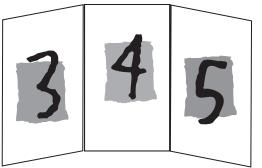

Page Two The next page you see when you open up the brochure should include the following things:

- +How large is your county (in square miles)? Draw it!
- Population: How many people live in your county?
- Description of the population, including the following options: rural or urban, education, lifestyle of citizens, and types of careers held by citizens.

When the brochure is opened, you should see three pages that should include the following things:

Page Three

 County government structure: Describe how the county government works. Do they use Home Rule or Dillon's Rule? Is there a single county executive and/or a board/council? Pictures can help!

Page Four

•County Departments: List the departments or agencies in your county government.

Page Five

 County Services: What are the four most important services your county provides for its citizens? Include pictures of these services.

Page Six The back of the brochure when it's closed up should include the following things:

- Fun facts about your county, like:
 - How old is your county?
 - Where does your county name come from?
 - What is your county famous for?

Brochure Instructions

S	3
---	---

4

County Departments

